

DEMAND SHOWDOWN WITH HULLMAN ON POLICE

EXPLANATION OF CHARGES EXPECTED

Crowley Has Mystery Appointment With Dist. Atty. Foley

Dist. Atty. Foley would demand a showdown with Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hullman and Supt. Crowley's admission against with Dist. Atty. Foley were the latest developments today in the case of a "mystery" appointment investigation of the Boston Police department which resulted from the scolding denunciation of police and police methods of the Suffolk grand jury.

From his home in Westfield today, Gov. Ely told the Boston Evening American his own investigation of the department as requested by Hullman. Regarding his conference with Foley, Crowley said, "It is true I have an appointment with the district attorney, but I know, where or why, I do not care to go."

TO DO JOB ALONE
But he said significantly, "I am charged with the duty of investigating the department, I am going to do the job alone and in my own way."

Although lacking official confirmation, the Boston police station is reported to have received the attention both of Hullman, Cummings, U. S. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and the Senate committee investigating racketeering through the country.

Copies of the grand jury report have been sent both to Cummings and to Sen. Copeland at their request, it was said today.

That he has no intention of tempering with a situation which already has become the object of two government investigations, Ely made plain in a telephone interview from his home in Westfield today.

TO REVIEW SITUATION
"Will you ask Hullman to personally explain his defense of the police department against charges contained in the recent grand jury report?" Gov. Ely was asked.

"I will probably take the situation over with me personally when I return to Boston next Wednesday."

"Have you any comment to make on the reported investigation of the Boston police department by U. S. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and by the Senate committee investigating racketeering?"

"I have no comment to make at this time. I do not know anything about the probe of the department being made against Crowley at Hullman's orders."

FIRST LADY ROASTS 'WEENIES' ON STICK

Hot dogs a la Campobello, that is frankfurters roasted over a bed of live coals from a blazing log, featured a woodland picnic yesterday of President Roosevelt and family with a few friends on the picturesque New Brunswick island where the executive and his mother have long had summer homes. Mrs. Roosevelt proved an adept in preparing the "weenies" which she later served personally to the eagerly waiting picnickers. She was shown holding one of the frankfurters over the hot coal after the blazing log had been put aside in accordance with culinary method of the islanders.

CROWLEY MOVES FAST
Among friendly rumors, the fact that the Hullman order was looked upon with glee, a chance for the veteran to bring to light recent moves of police on his advice was openly ignored. But no statement of his plans was forthcoming from Crowley.

Hullman's surprise move in turning over the explanation that should be his to Superintendent Crowley, came after a conference between Hullman and his legal adviser, Attorney General Schwartz, neither of whom reported at Police Headquarters today.

In spite of the Hullman move, it was learned today that the governor will not ask Commissioner Hullman, and not Supt. Crowley, responsible for any inefficiency, inactivity or other discrepancies within the department.

Boston Officers Go to Westfield With Papers to Sign

Serjt. Arthur Tietman and William Bonner, who ended the long search for Stephen Guston, Westfield, today left for Albany to get Gov. Ely's signature to extradition papers for the event the notorious gangster decides to fight his removal here.

FRISBY EXPLAINS HIS TAX RETURNS

WASHINGTON—Horace Walpole Frisby took the witness stand yesterday before the Senate Banking Committee. Although his hands fluttered, and he gulped and stammered frequently, everyone remarked that he has a great personality.
"Why did you make out your income tax return in the Chinese language?" asked the committee counsel.
"Because," replied Frisby, his Adam's apple bobbing hysterically, "I employ a Chinese accountant."
"Is it not true that you contracted with the government to remove wild deer from the streets at fifty cents each?" asked counsel.
"Yes," Frisby by this time was chewing the end of his necktie.
"Did not the government pay you $27,500 in fees?"
"Yes."

"But your return, according to our translation, merely mentions $2.50 for this service."
"Well," said Frisby, "I only put down my net sales. My capital losses were enormous. I had to buy dead hares, cats and dogs from other cities, ship them here, and have my sun-lake distribute them throughout the city. Then my wife would call up and complain about a dead quadruped at such and such an address. The health department would call me back and ask me to retrieve the same. I fulfilled my duties and collected my fees, but you can see for yourself that if I have to ship in a dead cat from Montana, distribute it, and get only 50 cents for the collection, I suffer a capital loss on the freight."

It was unanimously agreed that Frisby was within his rights technically, although it was hinted that under the same act and hence over and over again.
